

STOP

the Public Lands Giveaway.

PASS THE MARK UDALL AMENDMENT.

America's national parks, wildlife refuges, and wild public lands—even private lands—are at risk. Unless Congress acts now, these treasures could be carved up by roads due to a recent Interior Department regulation. The regulation threatens the public's ability to enjoy natural treasures by opening up vast expanses of public land to development. Please support the Udall Amendment and stop the public lands giveaway!

Salt Lake Tribune "Most Utahns recognize that the jewels of the magnificent federal lands in this state—the towering red rock fins and canyons, the alpine fastnesses and the stark Great Basin vistas—should be protected. Any maneuvers that undermine that protection should be viewed with alarm." —April 20, 2003

Arizona Daily Star "The short-sighted shift away from wilderness is a shift toward commercial exploitation of public national resources." —April 21, 2003

The Boston Globe "...the administration has proposed a new rule that would greatly increase the number of people who can make RS2477 claims and when they can make them...the Bush administration is doing the bidding of industry backers—but is squandering a birthright of all Americans." —July 15, 2002

The Washington Post "...Congress must intervene earlier and more frequently in wilderness disputes, taking the entire nation's wishes into account." —July 3, 2003

The (Harrisburg) Patriot News "Wilderness can always be destroyed, but it cannot be created. We should not squander for questionable purposes what little remains." —April 17, 2003

Alaska Wilderness League • Campaign for America's Wilderness • Earthjustice • National Parks Conservation Association • National Wildlife Federation • Natural Resources Defense Council • Sierra Club • Southern Utah Wilderness Alliance • The Wilderness Society • U.S. PIRG